AMERICAN SOCIETY OF PLANNING OFFICIALS (ASPO)
1313 E. 60th Street,
CHICAGO 37, Illinois

"A non-profit corporation, founded in 1934, to promote efficiency of public administration in land and community planning". ASPO, along with the American Institute of Planners, is the organization to which most professional planners belong; but, unlike the AIP, membership is open not only to city planners and administrators, but to lay citizens and anyone interested in its purposes.

Membership Dues: $15.00 annual dues in the U.S.; $10.00 outside the U.S.; other memberships to $100.00.

Services: Publications; conferences; advisory services; research reports, discount on selected number of planning books.

Publications:

1. ASPO Newsletter, monthly, includes reports on current planning subjects, notes on legislation, zoning decisions and bibliographies.
2. Jobs in Planning, semi-monthly listing of positions available in planning (formerly part of Newsletter).
3. Planning, annual conference proceedings. Back copies of most of the annual ASPO conference proceedings are still available from $2.00 to $5.00..
4. Planning Advisory Service Information Reports, monthly technical reports on zoning, shopping centers, air pollution, subdivision and other problems of current interest.

Subscription Rates:

Annual subscription rates to the Planning Advisory Service vary according to the population of communities, as follows; under 150,000 - $100; 150 - 250,000 - $150; 250,000 - 350,000 - $250; 300,000 - 600,000 - $350.00; 600,000 or over $400.

Rates for other organizations and individuals have been set tentatively as follows; housing and redevelopment authorities, $100; planning consultants, $100; universities, $100; architectural and engineering firms, $400. These rates, however, are subject to adjustment based on the amount of research undertaken in each case.

Planning Advisory Service Reports are available on an annual subscription basis, except for reports for the years 1949 through 1954 which are usually sold at $5.00 a copy.

Back issues of the Planning Advisory Service Reports may be seen and used in the Community Planning Branch.

Publications: 5. Zoning Digest, monthly summary and interpretation of the latest zoning decisions handed down by all state courts of last resort, $150 a year for separate subscription ($100 a year to subscribers of Planning Advisory Service). Volumes 1 to 4 inclusive for 1949 to 1952 with Index are available for $15.00 a volume.

6. Separate publications and special bibliographies.

PART E

COMMUNITY PLANNING ASSOCIATION of CANADA, (C.P.A.C.)
National Office,
77 MacLaren Street,
Ottawa 4, Ontario.

The Community Planning Association of Canada, organized in 1946, has as its chief objective the understanding and promotion of community planning. This citizens group, to which any person or organization including planning boards and municipalities may belong, has representation in every province.

The Community Planning Association endeavours to keep a close liaison with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the planning department of the various provincial governments and many municipalities and planning boards. Individuals are encouraged to assist in their own communities in stimulating public opinion to have planning legislation initiated, implemented and enforced for the protection of their own localities.

Membership Dues: $5.00 per year for an individual, $25.00 for organizations wishing twelve copies of all publications. A separate subscription rate of $3.00 is available for the Community Planning Review,
 4 issues a year.

Services: Publications, annual convention, sponsors meetings and conferences throughout the country.

Publications: CPAC members receive annually four issues of the "Community Planning Review" a comprehensive planning magazine, and six issues of the "Newsletter", a bulletin giving current information about planning affairs across Canada.

Some back copies or reprints from the Community Planning Review are still available at a small charge. (Write the National Office for a complete list of their publications).

Publications on special topics are also distributed to members without charge.
